

Wines: Bodegaza (generic blend level)

Chilean wine was born in the late fifteenth century when Spanish missionaries arrived here.

These Catholic priests, adapting well to the perfect climatic conditions for wine making (and perhaps enjoying its effects!), became masterful in fermenting grapes into wine.

What we now know to be wineries, where these early wines were produced, were then known as Bodegazas.

